Allow me to state a few of the points to which attention ought to be turned; 86,009 were subscribed to the building of the road. The Blacksville people seem to be in earnest in this enterprise, and the rich land owners along the line between Waynesburg and that place should give the project every encouragement by subscribing liberally to the stock of the company, as the narrow gauge extended to that point would be of incalculable benefit to the country and people of the southern part of Greene county.—Waynesburg Republican.

Allow me to state a few of the points to which attention ought to be turned:

1. It is said that the expulsion of the Hible from the schools is insignificant. Somebody evidently thinks its presence there is not insignificant, or the good old book would not be selected from—all our that point would be of incalculable benefit to the country and people of the southern part of Greene county.—Waynesburg Republican.

OUR FRIENDS IN THE NEXT LIFE .-The after life and world do not seem us to be remote or mystical, any more mystical because it is beyond our sight. Nor do those who have passed into the unseen seem to have gone far or be really separated from us. The vision of spiritualized beings must, in the nature of things, ized beings must, in the nature of things, be finer than the vision of material beings; and, while we cannot see them, doubtless their dear eyes constantly behold us. And as to what some have suggested, that, if this were so, then would our sinning pain them, being beheld, we would say that this does not hold in reason for sure it is that they cannot be would say that this does not hold in reason; for sure it is that they cannot be more sensitive to our sinning than is God; and if God's heart can bear the spectacle of our transgressions, why should we think that those less sensitive to wrong doing than is He should not be brave enough to bear the sight? They who are there are much the sight? They who are there are much twiser than we who remain. They see the end from the beginning, and we tronsolations they may have come to them from their lofty view of things we know not; but we may imagine that they are fyreat and many. We should not worry ourselves over-much touching such intricate questions, but rather rejoice that those who were dear to us, and in whose lives we found joy, are actually living and in a state of inexpressible happing and in a state of inexpressible happing with the sense of the controller. We would not work when have the churches the poor, degenerate churches must get the State to help them do their work. When have the churches have the churches he work. When have the churches he was the way when the controller than those who were dear to us, and in whose lives we found joy, are actually living and in a state of inexpressible happing and in a state of inexpressible happing the sense of the controller. son; for sure it as that they cannot expend on more sensitive to our sinning than is God; and if Cod's heart can beat the speciacle of our transgressions, why should we think that those less sensitive to wrong doing than is He should not be brave enough to bear ness. Nor does that distance seem to be so distant, because of the fact that it is being lessened daily, and the space between us shortened. We know not how soon, we may not tell the day or the hour, when the gates shall open and we be admitted where they are. But we cannot doubt, if we believe in Christ and have faith in immortality, that we shall come to them, some day—the day of God's appointment—and put our arms around them and have them with us forever. And this coming together of those who have loved and still love, but have been for a brief time apart; this reunion of souls that were as one, but were separated and kept apart for a brief space; this meeting and having and enjoying those we crave and tality, that we shall come to them, some day—the day of God's appointment—and put our arms around them and have them with us forever. And this coming together of those who have loved and still fove, but have been for a brief time apart; this reunion of souls that were as one, but were separated and kept apart for a brief space; this meeting and laving and enjoying those we crave and all that we have craved purely, men call death, and drape the royal event with crape, and fill the gateway of man's finest victory with lamentations. If we could be unselfash enough to think less of what we lose and more of what they gain, how different would the fashion of our funerals be! "In my Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so, I would have told you."—The Golden Rule the could have told you."—The Golden Rule the coul

| It is with pleasure that we mention the fact that the long-neglected tomb of President Zachary Taylor has at last received the attention of considerate relatives. A number of considerate relatives. A number of considerate relatives. A number of considerate relatives. received the attention of considerate rela-tives. A number of workmen, at the in-stance of Mr. Richard II. Taylor, of this city, a nephew of General Taylor, have been buistly engaged for several days past in giving the last resting place of our twelfth President a presentable appear-ance. The Taylor Cemetery is about five miles from the city, on the Browns-lora turnible. The tron gate has been

FRIDAY, NOV. 5, 1875.

OUR exchanges are pointing with astonishment to the increased vote of the Martin's Ferry precinct and hinting at the colonization is what did it—we have colonization is what did it—we have colonization is what did it—we have colonized a good many active industrious mechanics and laboring men since the last election, and we are colonizing every day What's the use of having an enterprising thriving town unless you increase the population. Martin's Ferry is not the place to wait for slow process of natural increase. "The Gods help those who help themselves," and we work for our own prosperity.—Martin's Ferry News.

RAILROAD MEETING AT BLACKSYILLE—A railroad meeting was held at Blacksyille, W. Va., last Saturday evening, in the interest of the extension of the colonization of the children, and who ask the Parable of the Good Samaritan, can be recited in the hearing of the Good Samaritan, can be recite for schools where it is read.

2. Its removal is insisted on by others because, it is said, freedom of conscience demands it. Some do not believe in the Bible, and ought not therefore to be taxed for schools where it is read.

Then, for the same reason, expel it from our army and navy, from Congress, from the courts, dismiss all our chaplains, banish the Bible from our prisons, and from all public asylums for the poor, the deaf, and the blind. Those who suppose that religious liberty calls for this, may be pool men; but their ideas are somewhat maddled.

but their ideas are somewhat muddled.

3. It is said, we have no union of Church and Siate. Our government has nothing to do with the propagation of religion. Neither has it anything to do with the propagation of medicine, allowed the three propagation of medicine, allowed the three propagation of medicine, allowed the three propagations of medicine, allowed the three propagations of medicine, allowed the propagation of the propagation of medicine, allowed the propagation of medicine, al pathy, homosopathy, hydropathy; but I vaccinates the children by law, neverthe must look out for its own interests, which are the interests of the Quaker, too.

4. It is asked derisively, whether the churches—the poor, degenerate churches must get the State to help them do their work. When haye the churches of Chicago, asked anything of that kind? It is the citizens of Chicago, not the churches, who want the Bible in the schools, and they want it there for the sake of Chicago, not for the sake of the churches. If the interests of any of the Churches should be found to be coincident with the interests of the city, so much the better for the Churches. They ought to be ashamed of themselves if it were not so, It would be a pity if their interests.

ordinarily is, therefore, rather the result of accident than of any kind of merit and even when it has been acquired by appear-is about Browns-Browns-peen buisily engaged for several day post in giving the last resting place of our twelfth President a presentable appearance. The Taylor Cemetery is about five miles from the city, on the Brownshoro turnylike. The Irong rate has been plained black, and the narrow walk to the President's tomb has been cleared and widened. The greatest transformation however, has been reflected in the exterior of the sepulchre. The loose and jutting stones have been replaced, and the rough stones have been replaced, and the rough and polithed surface. New earth has been placed in the eavities, and the numinit has been cleared of the briars and brambles which covered it. The other graves in the enclosure, that have not been visible for years, now appear under the shadow of spotless marble slabs. Having a key of the President's tomb our reporter entered the marble portal, He found himself in a room of solid masonry about eight feet square. The sun cast a mellow light into the chilty apartment and disclosed two codins. They were constructed of stainer point and therefore the state of the s

The Benwood Iron Works Fur-nace.

From the Martin's Ferry News.]

This company have changed their original intention when the furnace first gave way, and are now raising the hoisting house and furnace ten feet higher than it was; also taking out the old brick buttments and replacing them with iron columns, much stronger and more durable. The change will give them an opportunity, at any time, of increasing the capacity of the melting furnace without much trouble. Their average production is now about 30 tons of iron user day; with From the Martin's Ferry News.]

the change they are making they can in-crease this to 35 or 40 tons without re-building the furnace. However, the chief object in extending it is to save fuel, to economise. Where the ore has but a short distance to go until it is melted, it requires a very hot fire and consumes a great deal of fuel, but the longer the dis-tance and the exposure to heat the less fuel is required. The cost of the change will be about $1,200 and occasion their being idle about two months. being idle about two months.

Starvation Logic.

From the Reading (Pa.) Eagle.] Several days ago a woman was inform had been arrested for stealing coal. In reply the mother said: "I try to raise my children in a Christian-like manner. Then if it is refused to me I will go to the pile in the coal yard and take a beteful, and say no more about it. I must have coal, and when I have not got the money to pay for it, how else am I to get it? It will not walk to me, hence I must get it the best way I can. But my children, I try to raise them without teaching them to steal.
